

---

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

TERHI AINIOLA received her PhD in 1997 from the University of Helsinki and is currently a senior researcher and adjunct professor at the Research Institute for the Languages of Finland in Helsinki. The study of proper names represents her main field of interest. One of her newest publications is a Finnish textbook of onomastics (Nimistöntutkimuksen Perusteet, 2008), co-authored with Minna Saarelma and Paula Sjöblom.

JUDITH FRÖMMER received her PhD in 2005 from the Ludwig-Maximilian University of Munich where she is also assistant professor of Romance Literatures. Her research concentrates on political semantics in the early modern and modern period. In 2008 she published the monograph Vaterfiktionen: Empfindsamkeit und Patriarchat in der Literatur der Aufklärung (Father Fictions. Sensitivity and Patriarchy in the Literature of the Enlightenment).

GEORG GROTE completed his PhD at the University of Münster in 1997. He is currently Head of German Studies in the School of Languages & Literatures in University College Dublin. His research areas include Western European History with special focus on historical and contemporary collective organisation of peoples through nationalisms and regionalisms. He has recently published a monograph on the transformation of the German South Tyroleans' collective identity in the 20th century, "I bin a Südtiroler." Kollektive Identität zwischen Nation und Region (2009).

NADINE JÄNICKE is currently completing her Ph.D. in English Literature at the University of Leipzig. Her research concentrates on the literary analysis of the discourse of globalisation, incorporating narrativity, intertextuality and spatial theory. She teaches English Literatures and cultural studies at the University of Leipzig.

FERGAL LENEHAN received his PhD in 2009 from the University of Leipzig where he is currently teaching cultural studies at the Department of English. He is originally from Ballinasloe, Co. Galway in Ireland. His interests deal with intellectual history of the 19th and 20th century in the Irish, British and German context.

DORIS SCHWEITZER recently submitted her PhD thesis in sociology at the Albert-Ludwig University of Freiburg. Since November 2009 she has worked as a research associate in the research group Idioms of Social Analysis at the Center of Excellence Cultural Foundations of Integration hosted by the University of Constance. Her interest lies in the areas of spatial theory, post-structuralism/structuralism, and cultural theory. She has also co-edited the forthcoming volume entitled Die Figur des Dritten (The Figure of the Third).

HANS-PETER SÖDER received his PhD from Cornell University in 1991. He is resident director of the Junior Year in Munich at the Ludwig-Maximilian University of Munich and concurrently Adjunct Professor of German Intellectual History at Wayne State University (USA). His research focuses on European Intellectual and Cultural History from the 19th century to the present. Entitled This Way Madness Lies: Max Nordau on Fin-de-Siècle Genius (2009), his most recent monograph deals with cultural theory at the turn of the century.

MYRTO-MARIA VOREAKOU is currently a PhD candidate at the Department of Architectural Language, Communication and Design of the School of Architecture at the National Technical University of Athens in Greece. She is also an adjunct faculty member at the Departments of Architecture at the University of Cyprus and at the University of Nicosia. Her research focuses on the notion of narrativity and its spatial implications.

JANI VUOLTEENAHO received his PhD in human geography at the University of Oulu in 2001. He is currently a post-doctoral researcher within the Department of Geography at the Academy of Finland and the University of Helsinki. His research focuses on urban and cultural geography. In 2009 he co-edited Critical Toponymies: Contested Politics of Place Naming with Lawrence D. Berg.